Did you know as a parent or primary carer, you are the biggest influence on your child's development!?

In the early years, children learn through playing and interacting with the people and environments around them. The more opportunities they have to communicate, interact, and experiment, the more they will thrive and develop important skills from speaking and listening, focusing attention and managing emotions, to building determination and confidence.

Playing is serious business!

Tower of Hands

- 1 Show your child how to build a tower of hands by putting one hand on top of another.
- 2 Together with your child make a hand tower that moves up and down.
- 3 Introduce numbers by instructing your child to build up and down by different numbers of hands.
- 4 Make the tower go higher and higher so that your child has to reach up as far as possible.

I am, she is

1

Explain that you are going to play a game where you will think about how you compare with each other.

2

For each question you ask, they need to respond at the same time either 'I am' or 'she is'.

For example, 'who's taller?' - 'I am'; 'who's older?' - 'she is'.

3

If both people answer 'I am' you have to battle it out together and decide - maybe it will be a tie-break!

Parents share their tips with each other...

*My children loved this game!
We played as a whole family,
involving big brother and little sister!*

*This really helped my son
to learn how to take turns.
He now loves turn-taking!*

We sat on the floor and built a tower with our feet, by putting them on top of each other.
